

CHAPTER 8. Metaphorical Nature of the Concept of Psychological Time: Present-Momentness of Past and Future	68
PART III. NOTHING	73
CHAPTER 9. Semantic Vacuum as the Analogue of the Physical Vacuum: Comparative Ontology of Two Realities—Physical and Psychic	75
CHAPTER 10. How Can We Contact Semantic Nothing?	87
PART IV. EXPERIMENT	95
CHAPTER 11. Meditation	97
A. Introduction: Meditation as an Entrance into Altered States of Consciousness	97
B. On the Meditation Practice	103
C. Meditation in Eastern Christianity	108
D. Meditation in Medieval Europe: Sermons of Meister Eckhart	115
E. Dream as a State Close to Meditation	118
F. Knowledge as an Experience.	125
G. Creative Scientific Activity as Unconscious Meditation	130
H. Meditation as a Journey Inside Oneself	137
I. About Those Lost in the Depths of Their Consciousness	140
J. Taxonomy of Consciousness	146
K. Can the Unconscious Be Socially Controlled?	149
L. Indivisible Integrity of Consciousness	155
CHAPTER 12. Symbols	157
A. Symbols in the Variety of Their Manifestations	157
B. Simple Geometric Symbols	165
C. Mandalas	179
D. Concluding Remarks	183
CHAPTER 13. Experimental Study of the Unconscious: Revelation of Semantic Fields Underlying Words of Everyday Language	185
A. Introduction	185
B. Experimental Procedure	185
C. Choice of the Key Words.	186
D. Experimental Results	187
E. Certain Considerations on the Validity of our Experimental Results	201
F. Comparison of Our Experiment with the Results Obtained by Grof	205
G. Comparison of Our Results with the Experience of Musical Therapy	212
H. Comparison of the Semantic Fields of our Experiment with the Semantics of the Explanatory Dictionary.	214
I. Concluding Remarks	219