ISI's Comprehensive System of Information Services

March 25, 1969

For many readers, Current Contents®/Education is serving as an introduction to ISI® and to its wide variety of information services.

Many, but not all, of our services, have been described briefly in the advertisements which have appeared in the weekly issues of CC®/E published to date. The others will be described in future issues.

But ISI is not merely a supplier of discrete, unrelated publications and services. Far from it. Our goal is to provide a comprehensive, coordinate system of information discovery and recovery publications and services specifically designed to help you and other scientists and research workers to cope with the full spectrum of your literature and information problems.

Current Contents/Education is an important element of the ISI system. Yet it is only one of many.

Many of the other ISI products and services, as well as ISI's basic philosophy, are described in the accompanying article: "The Who and Why of ISI". We hope that you will take a few minutes to review this information so that you will be able to take full advantage of the many ways in which we can help you to use the literature more efficiently and with less effort.
